SENIORS DANCING WITH THE FOOTBALL STARS FEBRUARY 12

College Football Players and Cheerleaders Bring Valentine's Day Early to Redlands Community Hospital Patients

WHAT: You are never too old or ill to enjoy Valentine's Day. College football players will be changing out of their uniforms and into formal suits for an early Valentine's Day celebration with local seniors. Football players and cheerleaders from the University of Redlands will dance and romance with Redlands Community Hospital patients on Thursday, February 12, 2009 at 6 p.m. at the annual Valentine's Day dance. Patients live in the hospital's skilled nursing facility, Asistencia Villa.

The young men and women will dance and spend quality time with seniors at the 'prom-style' event. The football players will give out flowers and corsages to their lucky 'dates,' who range from their early 50s to their late 80s.

"This is a wonderful and fun opportunity for the team to come together and serve the community with a memorable event," says Michele Soriano, Activity Director at the Redlands Community Hospital Asistencia Villa.

PHOTO OP: More than a dozen football players and cheerleaders bring some Valentine's Day cheer to elderly Redlands Community Hospital. More than 100 seniors who live at the facility will participate. The recreation room is being decorated in Prom style.
